

A REMARKABLE DIFFERENCE.

The capture of Angell, in Portugal, calls out some very striking comments by the press in relation to the difference in the popular estimation, between life and money. If a man in this country should commit the highest crime known to the law—murder—he could take refuge in Portugal, and there being no extradition treaty between the United States and that country, he could not, or would not, be arrested; but should he steal $113,000 from a corporation as Angell did from the Pullman Palace Car Company, or rob New York as Tweed did, and flee to Portugal, he is arrested at once, and delivered into the hands of the United States authorities. This may seem strange—it is strange—and it is nevertheless true. The time has arrived when offenses against a corporation are considered of more importance and far deeper in criminality, than offenses against society. The New York Times was not wide of the mark when it said that "had Angell merely killed five or six people, and had fled, society would have shuddered over his crime for a day or two, and would have gone calmly on with its various amusements and cares. In such a case the offense would be committed against society, which has no special guardian or defender." The crime would have been of a little account that no one would have troubled himself by following him to Portugal. His crime would have been soon forgotten in the hurry and bustle of life; but when a man steals from a rich and powerful corporation, he is followed all over the world, and the want of an extradition treaty does not preclude his arrest. A man who takes life, who blasts the happiness of homes, who robs a wife and children of the strong arms that support them, can cross the seas and be safe; but let a man steal money, and he is secure from the hands of justice nowhere on this planet. This is the effect of that peculiar and strange sentiment which prevails in the society of our day, that property is greater consideration—is more sacred than life itself.

The ultimate effect of this strong sentiment in society which favors money rather than life, no one can judge. There ought to be no place on earth where a murderer can rest in security as there seems to be no place where a thief can find a hiding-place. There should be a real revolution against the crime of cold-blooded murder, as against a robbery like that which Angell and Tweed committed. But the two crimes are held in different light. Fashionable society has not yet judged that murder is worse than stealing money; neither does it condemn a "failure" which enables a man to settle for one-third of the amount he owes. A mechanic who labors hard for ten hours each day to provide means wherewith to support his family, would be set down as a rascal if he did not pay every cent he owed at the stores; but a man who faces sumptuously every day, who resides in a palace, and who supports a handsome train-out, can fail in business, and society never dreams of discarding him. His "misfortune" is soon forgotten, and he becomes more popular than ever. This is not an extravagant illustration, but a truthful one—one which is seen in all our large cities.

OFFICERS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

It is pretty well settled that Mr. Charles E. Bross, of Madison, Chief Clerk of the Senate for a part of last session, will be re-elected this winter. A better selection could not be made. Mr. L. J. Brayton, of Marquette county, who was Sergeant-at-Arms last winter, is a candidate for another term. Mr. John Cover, of Grant county, is a candidate for Sergeant-at-Arms of the Assembly, and Chalmers Ingersoll, of Beloit, will be presented as a candidate for the same position in the Senate. There are several candidates for various places in the Legislature, coming from Milwaukee, but what they are after or what they are likely to get, is hardly to be conjectured.

We desire here to present the name of a worthy gentleman for the Clerkship of the Assembly—that of Mr. F. S. Lawrence, of this city. He has been suggested as a suitable candidate by several members of the Legislature. He is well known to the Republicans of this State, is thoroughly qualified for the position with which his name is connected, and will be strongly endorsed as a candidate.

The Territory of Wyoming is the only place in this country where women are allowed by law to vote. Female suffrage has been in practical operation there for about six years, and seems to give general satisfaction. Attempts have been made by a certain class of papers to prejudice the public against woman suffrage, which has aroused some of the leading men and women of the Territory who feel proud over the fact that Wyoming was the first to give women the ballot. Ex-Governor John M. Thayer declares that the results of female suffrage have been beneficial, and its influence favorable to the best interests of the community. Ex-Governor John A. Campbell, denies the statement of the Chicago Times that the chief female voters were lewd. He says the better class of women are largely represented at the polls in all parts of the Territory. They are accompanied by male friends or relatives in nearly all cases. Mr. Campbell asserts that he has never seen elections conducted in any place more orderly than in Wyoming.

An interesting church trial took place in Chicago this week, which has attracted considerable attention. Mrs. J. Anderson and her daughter Miss Jennie, are members of the Trinity M. E. Church, of that city, and own certain property which Mrs. Anderson rented for saloon purposes. When this fact came to the knowledge of the church, charges were preferred against the mother and daughter, a trial had and a conviction secured. It is singular that in the trial of the cause, a jury was impaneled as in a court of law. After they were found guilty of the offence charged they promised not to break the rules of the church any more, and the trouble was ended for good by the pastor, Mr. Croft, extending to the ladies mercy and forgiveness. Why couldn't the pastor and the church have forgiven them at first without putting the church in the unhappy position of going on with a trial which proved to be a farce?

When Democratic papers like the New York Express "go" for Tilden, it is a strong indication that Samuel will have some trials to surmount if he carries off the nomination in 1880. The Express gravely remarks: "It is characteristic of the man to seize on such an unfortunate breach in the party in that State and try to wedge himself into prominence through the cleavage. He seems to feel that his only hope is in the misfortunes of this party, and his chief efforts since his disgraceful fiasco in 1877 have been directed to foment disturbances and make trouble. The break in this State was wholly of his making, and the recent disfigurement of the Democracy was the result of his disastrous and malignant interference. He has cursed the party long enough, and the sooner he is shaken off the better for it and the country." How is this as a portrait of Tilden, from a Democratic pen, too.

The Pittsburg Gazette can see no other available candidate for 1880 than General Grant. It thinks he will give eclat to the Government, will strengthen public confidence, and will break up a solid South. Without saying one word in disparagement of General Grant's great services to the country, we simply desire to remind the Pittsburg Gazette that so far as the solid South is concerned, it became such, virtually such, under Grant's last administration. It seems that he did not have the power then to prevent the consolidation of the South, neither to protect the Republicans of Louisiana in the right to control the affairs of that State.

A story got in circulation some time ago that in the spring of 1864, the Younger brothers, the James brothers, and John J. Arret, attempted to kidnap General Grant while he was in charge of the Potomac army. The report became so prominent, and was talked of so much, that Cole Younger, now in the Minnesota penitentiary, was interviewed regarding the matter, and he denies that any such attempt was made. Talk about kidnapping General Grant! He was not that kind of a General, and could not be kidnapped any more than he could be captured by the rebel army.

A dispatch from Washington says the number of known soldier's graves in the National Military cemeteries is 165,102, and 145,911 unknown. The dispatch says that all of these have been marked with marble or granite headstones, except a few in a New Jersey cemetery, and of the $1,000,000 appropriated there remains unexpended $191,938. The Secretary of War will ask authority from Congress to expand this in erecting headstones at the graves of Union soldiers interred in private and village cemeteries.

Dr. McCollister, who is not unknown to the temperance people of Janesville, and with whom at one time they had some experience that will not soon be forgotten, is now at Beaver Dam hard at the "temperance" work.

It is strange that no one has stolen the corpse of the Democracy! But probably there isn't enough of left for dissection.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

It is not strange. Putrefaction has gone on too such an extent, that no one except with nostrils of cast iron, could raise it up.

Mrs. D. H. Thompson, of Memphis, whose husband was postmaster of that city and died in August of yellow fever, has been appointed postmaster in his stead.

When England and Russia begin to strike the blows, the United States can count on a rise in the price of wheat.

ROCK.

—Mrs. A. B. Waterman was quite seriously injured last Sunday evening, the 24th inst., by falling through the cattle guard at the railroad crossing in Alton. She has been confined to her bed for several days, but is now recovering.

—Mrs. Charles Everingham, of the town of Beloit, died Wednesday morning about 4 o'clock. Mrs. Everingham had been a invalid for several years, but had recently been quite well. It is thought her sudden death was owing to heart disease.

—Rev. G. H. Moulton, of Menasha, Wis., and Mrs. Clapp, of Fayette, Iowa, are in town to attend the funeral of their father.

THE PHYSIOLOGY OF THE LIVER.

The liver is the largest secreting organ in the human body, and the bile which it secretes is more liable to vitiation and misdirection from its proper channels than any other of the animal fluids. Luckily for the bilious, however, there is an unfailing source of relief from liver complaint, merely, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine which for over a quarter of a century has been achieving thorough cures of the above mentioned ailments, fever and ague, dyspepsia, bowel complaints, rheumatic and kidney affections, and disorders involving loss of nervous vigor. It is, moreover, a preventive of malarial disease, and affords protection to thousands of persons residing in districts of country where that dire scourge is prevalent. As a remedy adapted to the medicinal requirement of families, it is supremely desirable, and as a means of fortifying a debilitated system, it is thoroughly to be depended upon.

IN TROUBLE.

Special to the Gazette.
DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 30.—This community has been thrown into a state of high excitement by the arrest of Elder J. W. Stevenson, of this conference, who is charged with drunkenness and with insulting women on the streets. He has always stood high in society. It is feared that he is insane. The ministers of the city flocked to the jail to see him, and almost instantly furnished bail when he was released.

Wade Hampton to Succeed Patterson—The Bancroft Treaty.

Special to the Gazette.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 30.—Trustworthy advice received from South Carolina, to-night, indicates that Governor Wade Hampton will be elected United States Senator to succeed Patterson, next Tuesday, without doubt.

The status of the German-American citizens in Germany, under the Bancroft treaty, is exciting further controversy. Secretary Everts, in order that he may not be misunderstood, has written a letter to a gentleman in New York, on the subject.

Twenty-nine Carriages of Arms for Turkey—The Italian Internationalists.

Special to the Gazette.
LONDON, Nov. 30.—A dispatch from Constantinople says that since the cessation of hostilities, twenty-nine vessels have arrived mostly from the United States, with large cargoes of rifles and cannon. The Turkish troops are now well furnished with arms as before the war.

ROME, Nov. 30.—The latest arrests of Socialists have led to the seizure of documents that have given much information relative to the organization of internationalists of Italy, and their connection with similar bodies in foreign countries.

AFGHANISTAN.

General Browne's Communications Cut—Opinion of the Press.

PESHAWAR, Nov. 29, evening.—General Browne's communications have been temporarily cut. Hostile Highlanders, estimated at 4,000 in number, have collected in the hills below Ali Mu-jid. They cut off stragglers and fired on armed parties. The section of the pass between Jumrood and Ali Mu-jid has been closed altogether for the present. A strongly escorted convoy failed to force its way to-day. The situation is serious, and strong measures are inevitable.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 29.—The Norov Vremya publishes an article saying the responsibility for the dispatch of a Russian Embassy to Kabul rests with Russia, and not Afghanistan. England avoids a strong opponent and falls upon her weak neighbor.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The Pall Mall Gazette says: "Russia cannot suffer us to prosecute our successes in Afghanistan to whatever issue we may think fit. That action will be taken sooner or later is certain."

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

A Fond du Lac Girl Hears Bad Stories and Attempts Suicide.

FOND DU LAC, Nov. 29.—Mary Cole, a girl of 16 years, attempted to commit suicide last night by taking poison. Her life was saved, however, by prompt attention, and she is nearly well. She is well connected, and gives her reasons for the act, which consists in her hearing stories in circulation damaging to her character.

A COURAGEOUS BOY.

GENEVA LAKE, Wis., Nov. 29.—Fred Lull, a 14-year-old boy, living between here and Springfield, deserves a medal for his bravery. The other day a mad dog attacked the children at school in his district, and he in turn attacked the brute with a stick of wood, beat it back several times, and finally this thrust the stick down the creature's throat, caught him by the tail and threw him out of the entry, and it was afterwards shot by a neighbor farmer. Fred is the bright particular hero in that school.
